In addition to the hanger and flying field, Broadhurst owned and operated the Weston Nurseries, the buildings of which with stock were destroyed. Weston firemen found that the place was more than their unit could handle and summoned help from Walsley. Fire was rectified through the whole structure, broke through the roof of the hanger, and could be seen for miles about.

MELION MAKES PEACE, MOVE

Washington, June 15.—After first threatening "political reprisals," the Mellon organization is now making peace with its opponents in the recent $2,000,000 Pennsylvania Senatorial primary race, it was revealed to the Senate "Trust Fund" Committee today by Joseph N. MacKrell, a Mellon leader.

MacKrell testified he had received assurances only this morning that he would not be "punished" or "punished" for having opposed the Mellon machine and supported the Vars-Bedeman organization. MacKrell said he first met Vars for Senator, but had pledged his support to Bedeman for Governor when the latter withdrew from the 1924 race. When Vars declined to support Bedeman, MacKrell said, he went over to the Vars side.

GREATEST CITY PAYS HOMAGE TO 8 PRINCES OF CHURCH

CIVIC LEADERS GREET CATHOLIC PRELATES ON STEPS OF NEW YORK CITY HALL
View of the vast crowd that helped pay tribute to eight Catholic cardinals in America's chief metropolis. It was the first time in the history of this country that a papal legate was tendered public honors. The church dignitaries were greeted by Mayor Walker, Governor Smith and other leaders in the life of the Empire State. The cardinals, standing in the foreground, are, in the order named: Reig Casanova of Spain, Dubois of France, Pitti of Austria, Mayor Walker, Bonzano, papal legate; Governor Smith, Hayes of New York, Cernoch of Hungary, Charost of Brittany and O'Donnell of Ireland. The departure of the Legate and his attending Cardinals for the West ended a procession of respect culminating with the civil greeting accorded them by the New York State and city authorities.

All the way down from the residence of Cardinal Hayes, where Cardinal Bonzano joined the party, and the Vanderbilt Hotel, where the other Cardinals have been guests, the motor cars of the prelates passed through the streets lined with hundreds of thousands.

HAS TWO PARTNERS.
As the Legate's party came to the Plaza around the City Hall the crowd caught sight of the magnificent of red and purple and gold, which rose above the strains of the regimental band of the one hundred and sixty-fifth footman.

The red robed dignitaries, attended by archbishops, bishops, monsignors and priests, strode up the steps and entered the Governor's room where Alfred H. Smith of New York greeted them.

The Governor, after a formal welcome of the Legate, reminded the Cardinals that they would pass tomorrow through the Mohave Valley, which had been the water route to the West when Chicago was a trading post.

"There's a song," he told them, "valued 'The Goodbye of New York.' The popular idea is that it belongs to me. I have two partners in it, though, the Mayor and our own Cardinal, who was born down here not so far from the City Hall, and not so long ago, at that. When you reach Chicago you will meet an older man, New York is proud of Cardinal Mundelein has a big claim on New York, and we're glad to let him in on the fourth corner of our sidewalk bridge."

Cardinal Bonzano, answering the Governor's declaration his announcement of his visit to New York, declared his admiration of New York's material achievements. He gave the blessing of His Holiness, Pope Pius XI, to the people of the Commonwealth, and expressed the inter-relationship of Pope and America.

PUMP SECONDARY.
"The culture of Europe reaches its highest expression in the Catholic church," he said, "and our attendance at the Eucharistic Congress will emphasize the history of the church. The Congress has a twofold aspect, however, for we not only greet Christ as the King, but as the one who suffered for humanity. The pomp and circumstance of the Congress is but secondary to the deeper spiritual significance."

Cardinal Bonzano was attended by his own staff, among them the resident Knights of St. Gregory and Knights of Malta, as well as by the cardinal. He had come in by New York from the Lower Island, where the Bonzos of Nicholas St. Brady, who the Bonzos have turned over to him during his New York visit.

phased the inter-relationship of Pope and America.

GREET LEGATE WITH MUSIC OF CHIMES

Chicago, June 14 (Universal)—To the peal of the bells and chiming of Chicago's 800 Catholic churches at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, John Cardinal Bonzano, Papal Legate to the Eucharistic Congress, will make his entry into the city.

With the arrival of the special train bearing the official party of the legate and eight other cardinals with a large group of priests, the unofficial opening of the congress will be celebrated.

City officials, all the prelates of the church already here, and thousands of Catholic laymen, members of the Knights of Columbus, Papal Knights of St. Gregory, Ancient Order of Hibernians, and children from the parochial schools will greet the legate and many of them will join the vast procession which will move down Michigan avenue toward the Cathedral of the Holy Name, where the unofficial ecclesiastical welcome will take place.

At the Cathedral of the Holy Name Cardinal Bonzano will be met by Bishop Hoban of Chicago, who will escort the Papal Legate and Cardinal Mundelein up the main aisle to the sanctuary.

The combined choir of the Quigley preparatory and St. Mary of the Lake seminaries will sing the solemn antiphon customary at the entry of a high prelate.

After a brief prayer at the velvet-draped kneeling bench before the high altar, the Papal Legate will be escorted to the throne at the left of the altar to hear the address of Mundelein. The cardinal legate is expected to make a brief reply, and with that the formal church service will close.

The Papal Legate will leave immediately for the home of Cardinal Mundelein and the other cardinals will go to the Drake Hotel, with the exception of Cardinal Faulhaber, who will be the guest of Anthony Purser.

MISS HOUGHTON RESUMES HER DAILY RIDES

Ambassador's Daughter Recovers From Broken Bone; Was Thrown From Horse By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES
Special Service Correspondent.

London, June 15. (A.P.)—Miss Matilda Houghton, daughter of the American Ambassador, who has just resumed her daily riding in Rotten Row, Hyde Park, after breaking her collar bone a few weeks ago.

Having been thrown from her horse and receiving a fracture, she insisted on riding the mount back to the stable, to the amazement of the crowd. She is now fully recovered.

Miss Houghton has much to be proud of. She possesses the last Princess Elizabeth's ribbon for the cupation of being the cleverest young woman in the chancelleries of Europe. She dances the Charleston as well as she rides—doing both incredibly well. And she has one of the best collections of fashions in the world.

Miss Houghton was the guest of honor at a large costume party given at the Berkeley Hotel by Mrs. Jack Hobbie, formerly Miss Gertrude Hobbie, formerly Miss Gertrude Hobbie, formerly Miss Gertrude Hobbie.

Young men about town in London are becoming strong admirers of Miss Houghton's riding. By means of which she is winning at least a month's vacation in hot climate can be obtained in a few hours.

According to the reports, the beauty expert at the Savoy Hotel, this treatment is not popular among the women, who prefer amateur powder, which can be removed at a moment's notice.

Parties given by London aristocrats have revealed elaborate lighting schemes. Ordinary dance parties are being stricken by a delicate golden glow. Dinner parties are being given under a light scheme which tends toward orange, while when dancing begins, a delicate pink and blue scheme gradually to a gold and blue scheme at the evening's end.

The lights are generally concealed in the wall corners near the ceiling of the room, no direct lighting being used.

Mrs. Charles F. Hoffmann, New York, who is here for the season, has revived the fashion for candle light for her dining room.

Fourteen Veteran Lancers to Form Honor Guard for Swedish Prince and Princess At Country Club

FOURTEEN DAILY CAPARISONED veteran Lancers, from Boston's notable old military organization, all brave in their bright crimson uniforms with lances a-ft and mounted on prancing steeds, will be an honor guard under Colonel Sabastru at the Country Club races on Saturday for their royal highnesses, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden.

SUCH IS THE LATEST picture reque detail added to the ceremonial reception arranged for their highnesses. The Lancers meet them at the gate and form a guard of honor about the royal household as it proceeds to the stands and the royal box.

AND JUST at the moment they enter their box (it is Number 14 and will be the focus of every eye that afternoon) the Swedish royal standard flutters to the top of a tall flagpole and the Swedish national anthem is played.

THE ROYAL PARTY will be flanked by notable Boston hostesses and hosts—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., at one side, Mrs. Philip Swann at the other, and Mrs. H. Aspinwall Knowles and Dr. William E. Ladd directly in front.

IT IS EXPECTED that these high honors will arrive at the races under the wing of their hostess, Mrs. and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, directly after a short visit at the Art Museum in the Fenway.

CARDIE HAVE just gone out to afford a reception at half past ten, at the beautiful Prince's Crossing estate of the Princes, where their circle of fashionable will be presented to their highnesses.

MEANWHILE, all is excitement at the Country Club. Yesterday morning saw a splendid troupe of the steeplechase—starting at the early hour of six and continuing until midnight—where there more than 800 people (turned out for the spectacle) pronounced it a huge success.

MARSHALL FIELD'S "Laba- dor" was there; also Alexander Henry Higginson's "St. Charles," which will be ridden by Mr. Higginson himself. "Pete the Steeple" and "Imperial" and "The sal." Steeplechase and flat races are down on the program.

FOR THE SECOND day the climax will come with National Hunt and the Country Club. The latter has twenty-one horses entered, including Warren, "Annie's Star," "Bridge," "Fisher Tom" and other famous mounts.

AUGUSTUS P. GOODWIN of the Eastern Horse Club's executive committee for the races already has taken up this abode at the Country Club, and that hospitable house shelters any number of visiting horsemen and guests.

NOT THE LEAST spectacular feature of the two days of racing will be the appearance about the track of road coaches—those highly colored vehicles with their sparkling teams which will be loaded by experts.

LOCALLY EVERY stable has been searched for one of the vehicles, which the late Alfred Vanderbilt and other famous whips both here and abroad brought into popularity a number of years ago. For the time being, Alexander Shaw is in charge of the coaches.

HARVARD WILL HAVE a smart representation atop three of the coaches—the A. D. Club has one, the Snee Club a second and the Ivy Club a coach, and these four will be in evidence Thursday.

JOHN BIRD and Elmer Jared Hills also have coaches for the races, and will entertain parties the Hills party to put in an appearance on Thursday. Coaches are very delightful places from which to view such a spectacle as the races promise.

OF THE SEVENTY boxes reserved, the Hugh Barcroft has No. 16; Mrs. Gordon Deane, No. 17; the Frederick H. Prince, No. 18; Mrs. W. W. Winslow, No. 19; Mrs. Robert Perkins, No. 20; Walter A. Baylis, No. 21; George Buel Mantel, No. 22; and William A. Patton, No. 23.

RICHARD BLY DANIELSON has No. 16; Mrs. Richard B. Saltonstall has reserved No. 10; Henry G. Vaughan, No. 9 and Mr. and Mrs. George S. West, No. 8; Miss Mary Weld, a member of the Eastern Horse Club, has Box No. 4; and Mr. Glen L. Stone, No. 22.

HIP FRACTURED WHEN STRUCK BY BICYCLE

Story of a Boston Girl Who Liked Jazz Music and the Bright Lights

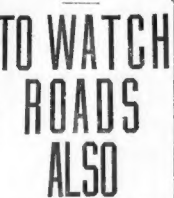

"Then you just bought Peru, I suppose," said JINNY blithely.

READ THIS FIRST:
MARY ANN LOCKE, whose nickname, MERRY, perfectly describes her, is in love with an unknown man whom she calls the Man in Gray. Every day when she leaves her Boylston street business school to go out for lunch, she passes him in the street. On her twentieth birthday Merry meets him on the street. She deliberately drops her handbag at his feet. To her enormous disappointment, he gives it to her without a word, lifts his hat and goes on.
Merry is annoyed and ashamed of herself. She feels that she has cheapened herself in the eyes of the Man in Gray, and wonders if she really is as "boy-crazy" as her mother has said she is.
That afternoon she fails in two of her tests at the business college, and dreams to tell MOMS about it. She meets young DERRICK JONES, the boy next door, who offers her to take her home in his car. Merry, disgusted with herself for letting Derrick make love to her the night before, sharply refuses.
When she gets home her father slips a bill into her hand for a birthday gift, and her younger sister, JINNY tells her that HELEN, the oldest of the four sisters, has baked her a birthday cake.
As Merry is getting ready for supper she sees CASSIE, the second of the sisters, stepping out of a car in front of the house. In the car is the Man in Gray.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CASSIE was an important person in the family.
She was head stenographer for the firm of Kaufman and Son, Milk street brokers; and she made more money than Dad made.
She paid her mother seven dollars a week for her room and board. All the rest of her salary she spent on herself.
"Every nickel goes on her back," MOMS often complained bitterly. "Never a cent does she put by for a rainy day."
The truth was that Cassie didn't like to save money. She was a spender. She had a rooming place and she kept the door to her room open all night long. When Mary stepped out into the hall, Cassie was stopping to tilt the key into the lock.
"Hello, Birthday Girl," she said, straightening up. "What's on your mind?"
"Who was that man who brought you home just now?" Merry asked curiously.
Cassie laughed. "Wouldn't you just love to know?" she asked teasingly.
"Don't tease me, Cassie," Merry said coaxingly. "Please be a good girl and tell me his name."
"Why do you want to know?" Cassie was curiously curious.
"Oh, I've noticed him in town once or twice, and wondered who he was," answered Merry, trying to seem indifferent. "Have you known him a long time?"
"No use trying to pump me," Cassie said. "Because I'm not going to tell you anything, see? I've learned to keep my mouth closed in this house!"
She narrowed her eyes as she said it.
Cassie's eyes were like those of a cat—hard and jewel-like. Merry's Continued on Page 15, Column 3.

OLD 'H. C. L.' TAKES DROP IN STATE
Police to Clear Charles of Canoe Spooners

TOWATCH BOATS ALSO
Metropolitan Force to Rout Petters by Use of Powerful Lights
The annual war against canoe petting parties on the Charles has begun.
The Metropolitan Park Police are geared for the fray, and fast motor-boats, equipped with powerful searchlights, are traveling up and down the river for the rest of the season.
That section of the stream flowing between Newton Lower Falls and Waltham will get special attention, as it is the happy hunting ground of the petters.
Here numerous light covers and spots where the trees hang out over the water attract the romantically inclined young persons, but the searchlights will enable the police patrols to rout them out.
Watchful police eyes will scan every nook along both shores, and petting couples are apt to find themselves ensnared by the law if they don't look out.
Nor will all the police be upon the river. Parties along the banks will be patrolled by men afoot, seeking for the petters that the Summer evenings will bring forth.
"We do not intend to make spots of our policemen," one official asserts, "but we do intend to keep the Charles River and our other reservations free for the benefit of all persons. To that end we are anxious to eliminate the undesirable. When the day comes when those who do not wish to obey the law remember that the Metropolitan reservations are too dangerous for them to visit, we may be able to dispense with searchlights. Until then they'll be kept on hand, and ready."
Canoe upsets in the past have been due to getting the police believe, but none of the youths or maidens involved have ever been induced to admit it.

MILLIONS POUR TO TREASURY
Prospect of Surplus Raleses Hope for Another Cut in Taxes Soon
By ROBERT S. THORNBURG
International News Correspondent.
Washington, June 16.—Millions of dollars were pouring into the Federal Treasury today from June income tax collections.
No accurate figure will be available for several days, but experts predicted that last June's $377,000,000 would be exceeded materially.
If the ratio of increase of the March collection of $499,428,000 over the $441,492,000 of March, 1925, is maintained, the government will obtain approximately $435,000,000 in income and corporation tax by June 30.
Every dollar collected in excess of the June 1925 figure is considered by treasury experts as an additional indicator of tax reduction within the next two years.
Treasury officials have cautioned against raising false hopes of another drop in income taxes soon, but the fiscal experts pointed out that the pessimism is somewhat dissipated by the actual collection figures.
At present average the government will collect about $37,000,000 the year ending June 30, compared to $37,000,000 last year, the $125,000,000 increase coming in spite of a tax reduction which reduced the public's bill over $400,000,000.

FOOD PRICE LOWER FOR NORTH
But It Still Takes $1.48 Now to Equal in Value $1 of the Year 1913
Due to a general decrease in food prices, the cost of living dropped 1.3 per cent, in May, according to an analysis issued today by the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life.
Considering the pre-war cost of food as 100 per cent, the cost in April of this year was 141.9 per cent, but in May it had dropped to 140.6 per cent. In other words, it took $1.406 to buy what could have been bought for a dollar in the food line in 1913.
Following is the table prepared by the commission to show the price increase since 1913, with a comparison between living costs in April and May of this year.
(1913 prices equal 100 per cent.)
Butter, 1 lb. .... April 141.9 May 140.6
Eggs, 1 doz. .... April 121.4 May 120.4
Shrimp, 1 lb. .... April 171.2 May 169.4
Poultry, 1 lb. .... April 161.2 May 160.4
Pork, 1 lb. .... April 171.2 May 169.4
While the cost of food, shelter and miscellaneous items decreased last month, the cost of clothing and fuel still increased slightly.
The purchasing power of the dollar in May, 1926, as compared with 1913, is reported as about 71 per cent.

USE LIVE BOMB TO PLAY CATCH
Garfield, N. J., June 16 (A.P.)—Two bombmen, one virtually a game of catch and throw between a boy and the bomber, and the other effective in snatching window early today, marked the twenty-first week of the twentieth strike.
Young John Purcell told police he was watching on his father's porch on Scudder street shortly after midnight when he was awakened by a third.
John saw a bomb on the porch floor and threw it into the street. A man standing there hastily hurried it back at the boy, threw it again, and then a third time.
The last time the boy threw it to the front of the grocery store of Mrs. Josephine Street, four doors down the street, where it exploded, shattering the front window.
The other bomb was placed before a man standing there, who was seen to throw it into the street. It broke twenty-five windows in the vicinity.

New Pitchers Certain to Help Fohlmen

DEAL BIG HELP, SAYS QUINN

"I believe the Ehmke deal will be a wonderful help for my ball club," wired President Bob Quinn from Detroit today. "We need pitching, hitting and outfield help, and we've secured all of them. Ehmke was a fine clip and pitched great ball for us, but two pitchers are better than one on a tall club, and I think both Harris and Heimach can win plenty of games. I believe his Jacobson to be one of the best outfielders playing big league ball today."

By NICK FLATLEY
BOB QUINN'S Red Sox have been strengthened just where they need power, in the biggest baseball deal of a couple of years. Howard Ehmke, a great pitcher when right, has gone to the market, and in return at least as much box strength has returned to the club. Between them will win more ball games for the Sox than Ehmke could. Hungry for a young man he needed to be and has to get a long time. Ehmke was a fine clip and pitched great ball for us, but two pitchers are better than one on a tall club, and I think both Harris and Heimach can win plenty of games. I believe his Jacobson to be one of the best outfielders playing big league ball today."
